

What does it mean to live out your faith in a world where there is so much injustice?

High school students from the North Pacific Conference are invited to gather together at Seattle University, August 6-11, 2008, to explore several issues of injustice in this corner of the world. You will be challenged to put feet to your faith by looking at what God's Word says and then learning how to make changes in your church, school and community.

Are you ready to be challenged to live out Matthew 25:14-46? When I see people who are sick I am there to care, when people are in prison I will be there to visit, when others are hungry I will be there to feed, when someone is thirsty I will give them a drink.

Come be challenged in your walk with Christ. Learn what it means to live out the Great Commission and the Great Commandment, giving feet to your faith. For more information, visit the North Pacific Conference events webpage at www.covchurch-npc.org or contact Marti Burger at marti.burger@covchurch.org.

Don't forget to bring: Bible; notebook and pen; camera; a good attitude; pillow; sleeping bag; deodorant; towel and wash cloth; good walking shoes; an open mind, lots of clothes (be prepared to wear layers, it can get cool in the evenings); toothbrush and toothpaste; and soap and shampoo.
